

ONE DAY'S FISHING.

VOUCHED FOR BY A MAN OF VERACITY.

Having Out of Valdosta-Catching Fish at Mallet's-A Night Under the Great Oak Tree-A Trip to the Return Home in the Evening.

Special to The Constitution.

ST. STEPHENS, May 5.—I hesitate to record what follows. When fish and fish stories are involved the world is cold and incredulous. But, backed by Charles Pendleton, Esq., of Aresia, I venture to write the history of this one day's fishing.

It was half past three o'clock when we rolled out of Valdosta in a roomy carriage, behind two horses that were warranted to make the 16 miles in less than three hours. As Jim Stapler begged us with gossip of cattle-driving for the Cuba market, and Ash pointed out vineyards from which 3,000 gallons of wine were made in one year and patches from which fortunes were made in melons, we regarded our tackle for the work of the next day. Suddenly Stapler said:

"I doubt if Dick will have any fish for dinner. Suppose we stop and catch a mess at Mallet's."

I suggested that we had better lose no time, as it was getting late.

"Oh," he replied, "we can catch them right on the side of the road without going ten steps out of the way. You can sit in the carriage and draw them in."

In about an hour the horses swerved a bit from the road, the carriage rolled over a green sward and halted under two noble live oaks, not twelve feet from the sandy highway. To the left stretched a superb lake, the cool green of its waters deepening in the shaded pools or glowing in the rich colors of the sunset. A sail boat gliding before the breeze, carried canvas now of gold and now of snow, as it ran in and out the lengthening shadows of the trees alongshore.

As we stepped from the carriage it was 18 minutes past six.

Almost immediately a line was thrown out, and the day cord dropped near a large bush. Before I had fairly settled on the water, it sped away under two quick jerks from below. The line tightened, the flexible pole bent like a riding whip, there was a splash or two, and a beam as broad as your two hands lay fluttering on the grass. He was not loquacious however. For before the hook was on his mouth his brother lay on the grass beside him. And then came his father and mother, and his sisters and his cousins and his aunts. Here and there a yearling trout broke the monotony of beam. An imprecation on worms that quirmed in unpracticed hands, marred the choros of delight. The sail boat melted away in the distance as a great white-winged bird is lost in the luminous depths of the sky. The trees cast their long arms still further over the water, and the dying sun threw its last into the clouds as the swan throws its last into the sea.

As we stepped into the carriage it was 20 minutes past six, or 22 minutes since we had stopped. We had thirty-three of the finest beam and perhaps a half a dozen trout, and our confidence in life and life's joys was fully re-established. I saw the long and willing string of fish into the carriage with the air of one who has determined to hold fast to the things that are good.

"There are enough of them to make the pan smell," said Pendleton, as we moved on toward supper.

What a night that was! Out under the great live oaks, that were drowsy with the hum of the cricket and katydid. The stars gleaming in their tranquil depths—farther away and more steadfast than the city stars ever seem to be; the lake lapsing on the shore at our feet; the lake larger, larger than a cluster of modern houses, silent and desolate save where the overhanging boughs of the trees swept curiously against it. The stars seemed to be calling from the outlying woods, from vague and indeterminate points, as if some restless spirit of bird were calling from shifting, impalpable perch—the crows moving uneasily in their slumbers, and the geese, sweeping as specters through the pale ways of the night—the dogs crouching near where we sat—two city bred youngsters huddled in our arms—and above all the ineffable hush, and peace, and expansion, the infinite stretch and comprehension, depth, and breadth, and stillness of a starlit night in the country, into which no bustle can reach, and about which no limit is set. The stars, the trees, the earth, the lake, the house, the sky, water, brutes and birds, and the watchers who sat beneath the trees seemed to be of one piece, and of one substance. The air that bound all these things together throbbed with one puls and rose or fell with one breath. All things held breath with all things else, and the incomparable quiet of the stars, the whispers of lake and tree, and all the wounds and silence of that fearful night sank into the souls of the men who lay beneath them and slid them with a peace that passeth understanding.

The delicious stillness was broken by Dick Stapler, who said:

"I believe there are more fish in the five lakes about this place than in any similar bodies of water in the country. The supply seems exhaustless. I have taken thousands out of that little spot there, and yet to-morrow you'll find it full."

"It was fishing here one day," said Tom Polhill, late of Baldwin, Florida, "and caught 365 fish trout and beam without moving fifty yards."

"Should certainly have fished a little longer and started a new year," I suggested.

"Usually the catch," said Jim Stapler, also late of Baldwin, "is limited by the desire of the fisher. The most remarkable thing about the lake is my mother's tame fish. In the bath-house she and the children used to feed the fish and at length they became so tame that we could lift the beam out of the water with our hands. I have seen a dozen of the largest beam taken out between my mother's hands, and just as you would take fish from a basket. There are scores of people who have seen this."

"The best day's fishing I have ever done here," started Charles Pendleton, who is the boss fisherman of the region, "was last—"

"Stop right there," said Mr. Westmoreland, sitting bolt, "what is the earliest moment in the morning at which the fish will bite—very earliest?"

"They will bite before sun up!"

"That is about six hours from now. I'll sit up and wait for it."

Three hours later I looked from my old fashioned bed, almost as big as a cottage, at the bed in which the doctor was lying. His eyes were closed on his nose. A cigar hung at an angle from his lips. His fishing rod was on the table, unjointed, and his glasses were set lightly on it. "I called him. No answer. I went to his bedside to blow out the light. He was asleep. He had, so to speak, died in harness."

The next morning before it was fairly light I was awakened by a tall figure in white, moving silently about the room. It was the doctor, trying to beat me to the lake. Without a word I thrust my feet into my shoes, drew on my coat, I had slept in my pants, and passed out to the beach-head near the bath-house. "I said as he turned a pair of astonished eyes toward me."

I was the first person out of the house. But the fish were ahead of me, and the sun wasn't far behind. The auroreal flush had already lighted the lake, and the mist slowly arising from the lake hung like a curtain of gold, before the sun's getting up. It was fairly light by the time the doctor joined me, and I had then made a good start toward the breakfast pan-fry. He took a boat and Tom Polhill rowed him to where the trout were in the habit of feeding. He was gone certainly not more than thirty minutes and returned with eight beam and trout and perhaps half as many beam.

"I have been nearer heaven," he said, "than men often get on this earth."

We greeted him with a string double the size of his, and Charley Pendleton, the lone fisherman, came in with a dozen beauties, taken from a spot known only to himself. The fish were sent to the pen and we took a turn about the estate while waiting their appearance on the breakfast table.

After breakfast Jim Stapler and I and two youngsters, who had camped for a week from Mrs. McCandless's admirable school in Atlanta, took a boat and started for a new lake.

"We'll take a few trout along the grass here as we work our way to the beam beds," said Stapler.

Out went the line whizzing through the air, and splash dropped the minnow in the edge of the grass. No—a trout did not take it just then, but after I had thrown it twice more, a three pounder did take it—and a very pretty struggle we had before he gave it up. Two smaller trout made it lively for us as we skirted slowly down the grassy sedge, and then the beam beds were reached.

What is a beam bed? I don't know. Nor do I know what "beaming" means, except that it's a fishing that beam never do in Thomas county and always do in Lowndes. But I do know that as we rowed through the clumps of grass, lily-pads and buttonwood bushes, picking up a beam here and there, Stapler would stop the boat occasionally. He would then point out the way for the lines. Out my line would go, and trailing it behind it the lines of the youngsters. And then as fast as we could handle the game, sturdy fellows we'd pull them in, until from five to a dozen were taken. Under the water near where we halted could be seen a hollowed place in the sand as large as a barrel head, trenched around with a heap of sand and with the interior kept as clean as a housewife's home.

We visited around among these homes pretty sharply, went in without knocking, and always found the folks at home. The youngsters fishing against each other caught 28 and 19, about one-fourth of which were trout.

When the crowd met, after the sun had become too warm for fishing, and compared results, it was found that we had taken over 150 beam and about 50 trout. A pretty good showing for not more than two hours of fishing.

During the afternoon we were scattered about in the shade on the lakeshore, gossiping over the events of the day, when Dr. Westmoreland called me.

"I want you to witness a thing that I would not believe myself I did not see it."

With great deliberation he fixed two carriage cushions on the ground. He then threw his line out, and let the pole rest on a bush. Returning to the cushions he threw himself on the ground, his head pillowed up so that he could watch his cork. He had hardly adjusted himself before it bobbed violently and then dashed out of sight.

"Moon," said he indifferently, turning to a servant, "will you please take hold of my pole and pull that fish out for me?"

It was about sunset when Dick Stapler mentioned that he knew a place where large trout were every evening. I determined to try them. He pulled the boat swiftly to a near edge of the lake where there were long rows of buttonwood bushes, with long and cool green water between them. As we neared them they looked pretty much a submerged peach orchard of tender growth. I had a rod and reel that I was anxious to try, and the trout jumping on every side gave evidence that I should not have to wait long. I put on a little perch and threw it about thirty feet away into a little hook of dark water. A trout took it with the splash and started with it to Valdosta. I followed through the reed. When the line was out he went right ahead, as I had expected to tie to the axle of the reel. I suppose he is still going, and wondering why somebody don't stop him. I took an old fashioned pole, and as the boat threaded its way through the lanes of dark green water, I whipped a perch into the inviting corners on either side. In every three or four feet a trout would take the challenge, and if he didn't get me tangled up in the bushes, we would bring him to boat. When it became too dark to follow the line distinctly we turned for the shore, with a pretty half-dozen flopping about my feet. And thus ended the rarest day's sport I ever had in fresh water or salt.

On the famous Fidelity plantation, in Brooks county, is an elbow of the river that has been known for thirty years as "Snead's Smokehouse." The origin of the name is apparent. In the antebellum days Mr. Snead took from this exhaustless pool the meat with which to feed his hands. On the same reason, these lakes ought to be called Stapler's Combination Smoke House, Hen-coop, Cattle-ranch and sheep farm.

The fishing that we did was not exceptionally fine, but rather the contrary. If the Stapler estate was in forty miles of Atlanta the fishing privilege on these lakes could be leased for almost any sum. But no sum could buy the privilege there or elsewhere. With enough land and more than enough to make them perfectly independent, the lakes are reserved by the Staplers for the pleasure of their friends, and the entertainment of their guests. Happy are the few who have a week to spare out of a busy year, and are enrolled in either of these categories. Outside of the fishing, it is worth a trip to Lowndes to see this fine picture of an old time southern home—that away from the path of progress and change has lost none of the characteristics of that splendid and fast fading civilization. After a hurried supper—the vision of that immense dish of pilchard trout that came before me as I write—we started for Valdosta. Mallet's with his white vest as spotless as it was the night before, confessed he had missed a picnic to come with us and was glad of it. Mrs. Stapler, in a last effort of a charming hospitality, sent us enough lunch to last a week. Dick, the sturdy head of a superb estate, stood by the carriage when we and we moved out into the night under brother Jim's guidance, wrung our hands warmly and said:

"Now, fellows, please come back again and see me. I do want you to be on the lake with me when the fish are biting!"

A Cigarette Lookout.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 11.—A lookout occurred at W. J. Kimball & Co.'s, cigarette factory here this morning. Seven hundred female employees being refused work. The firm have thrice refused a demand for an advance of 20 per cent, and fearing a strike they refused to give their employees any work when they arrived at the factory this morning.

The Alabama Odd Fellows.

Special to The Constitution.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 11.—The Montgomery Odd Fellows returned from the Grand Lodge at Greensboro 10, just adjourned, elated with the benevolent and hospitable treatment received there. The Grand Lodge meets in Mobile next May.

A Woman's Ire.

MEMPHIS, May 11.—Mrs. John Ennis, a widow, whose husband died in 1878, attempted to shoot Dr. H. W. Purnell, a well known physician, at noon yesterday. She claims that Dr. Purnell promised to marry her but refused to keep his pledge.

Duke Leading a Miserable Life.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 11.—N. L. Duke, the slayer of Captain Nutt and trader of his daughter, will probably be debarred from practicing in the courts here. He has no friends, and prowls about the street alone. He will yet be forced to leave the town.

Death of Colonel Meers.

MONTGOMERY, May 11.—Colonel Thomas N. Meers, a distinguished member of the Mobile bar, died suddenly of apoplexy at his room at the Exchange hotel to-day. His family will meet the remains here and convey them to Mobile to-morrow.

The Khedive's Monopoly.

CAIRO, May 11.—The judicial committee appointed by the Khedive has pronounced in favor of the Suez canal company's monopoly.

THE RAILROADS.

CROSSTIE GOSSIP IN AND OUT OF ATLANTA RAILROAD CIRCLES.

The Richmond and Danville Schedule—The Seaboard and Roanoke—Comparative Statement of the Georgia Road—The Gainesville, Jefferson and Southern—General Notes.

The following are the earnings of the Memphis and Charleston railway for the month of April, 1883: $80,765; 1882, $71,187; increase, $9,578.

Quite a town is springing up around the Georgia Pacific station at Coosa river. It is called Riverside and is situated in the heart of a rich country.

S. H. HARDWICK, general traveling agent of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, and R. N. Sump, southern traveling agent of the Ohio and Mississippi, are in the city.

The regular four cent mile summer rates for round trip tickets will go into effect on some of the roads on the 15th of May while others will not offer it until the first of June.

Mr. CHARLES NAGLE, traveling auditor of the Alabama division of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, and Mr. Thomas McKenzie, one of the clerks in the freight department at Rome, are visiting the city.

SEVERAL of the Georgia railroads have hung in their passengers' coaches cards giving the law of the state constituting conductors of the law and endeavoring with constabulary powers under certain circumstances. The law is much stricter in Georgia in this matter than in most of the other states, and conductors seldom have any trouble.

COMMISSIONER McWHIRTER, who is now in East Tennessee arranging for the proper representation of Tennessee's mineral interests at the Boston and Louisville exhibitions, writes to his office that he is meeting with enthusiastic response from the railroads, and especially so with the Virginia, Tennessee and Georgia Air-Line, which, through the courtesy of its general manager, Henry Fins, has offered to transport all specimens to Providence N. H. free of charges, and from Providence to the exhibition building to New York for a nominal fee.

SPECIAL excursion tickets from Atlanta to Cleveland, Ohio, will be sold by the Kennesaw route during the session of the American medical association in that city next month. Two trains will leave Atlanta daily, one at 2:30 p.m., which will arrive in Cleveland the next day at 3:30 p.m., the other will leave Atlanta at 11:40 p.m. and reach Cleveland at 7:10 a.m. the second day. The round trip tickets will be sold at $28.50. Both trains leaving Atlanta will have through sleepers for Cleveland, and the tickets will permit a stop over in that city.

The lively competition for fast freight and vegetable freights to the west and north is not the only thing that is stirring the energies of the southern lines. They are competitors with equal spirit in bringing freight from the east. The Seaboard line to Savannah and Charleston have recently made unheard of runs from New York and their close connecting with fast freight lines have made it possible to get goods to New York in a matter of days, and in some cases in a matter of hours.

The earnings of the Louisville and Nashville for April, 1883, were $396,150, against $393,693 for the corresponding period last year; decrease $2,443. The demand in the south for grain now is very lively, and as the season advances the demand will increase. This fact makes a decrease in business now, but greatly increases the purchasing power for the future. An interesting contest between water and rail is going on which will result to the benefit of the water, as cheap freights as well as quick.

The Cut Rate.

LOUISVILLE, May 11.—The cut rate from this city to Chicago by the Jeffersonville, Madison and Indianapolis, Louisville, New Albany and other western cities will be sold at $28.50. The rate for the round trip is seven dollars. There is no indication of weakening on the part of any of the roads.

The Baltimore and Ohio.

BALTIMORE, May 9.—The directors of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad have appointed Henry T. Douglass chief engineer of the new line to be constructed between Baltimore and Philadelphia. The new line will be 100 miles long, and will be completed in 1884. The rate for the round trip is seven dollars. There is no indication of weakening on the part of any of the roads.

The Tennessee Commission.

From the Nashville Banner.

The railroad commission met this morning and transacted some routine business, such as answering correspondence. About two weeks ago the commission addressed letters to the various railroads asking for schedules of rates. They have received these schedules from the Mississippi and Tennessee and Western and Atlantic roads. The Louisville and Nashville road addressed the commission signifying their intention of forwarding the schedules and also passing under the law. The commission will now receive the schedules from the Louisville and Nashville road, and will then be in a position to make a comparison of the rates of the various roads.

The Savannah, Florida and Western.

From the Albany News.

The work of relaying the Albany division of the S. F. and W. railway with fish bar rail is being rapidly pushed to completion.

This work was delayed on account of the litigation that was going on in the supreme court of the United States to establish the right of ownership in the South Georgia and Florida railroad. The supreme court having at length decided in favor of the S. F. and W. railway, this company immediately went to work, and now have a working force of fifty hands on this division, and the work of relaying the road is being vigorously pushed. This explanation is due to the management of the road, in view of the fact that some of the railroads have been indulged in from various quarters on account of the condition of this branch. The News and Advertiser now feels authorized to say that the work will be rapidly pushed until this city is reached when all cause of complaint will be effectually removed.

Gainesville, Jefferson and Southern.

An important scheme has just been arranged by the lessees of the Georgia railroad in securing control of the Gainesville, Jefferson and Southern railroad. The road is a narrow gauge which is now complete from Gainesville to Jefferson, and is being laid from Jefferson to Jug Tavern. From there it is to go on to Monroe, where it will connect with the road to Social Circle, thus giving through service from Gainesville to Social Circle. The road from Gainesville has been an enterprise undertaken and carried on by the citizens of Hall and the adjoining counties. They have struggled hard to build it, but have not been able to do so very rapidly. It has hitherto been operated in connection with the Air Line.

The French Road Route.

From the Charlotte Journal.

By the first of next June a new route for passengers and freight will be opened up through Warm Springs, this state, to Louisville, Kentucky, to be known as the French Road route. The lines of roads entering into the combination are the Carolina, Charlotte, Columbia and Augusta, Western North Carolina and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, which include the Charlotte, Knoxville and Ohio railroad. The object is to run through sleepers from Charleston, Louisville and Nashville, and to make the map will show that this route will be the shortest line to Louisville and southern cities in extension, and will also be a more favorable route. Mr. Ed. Fitzgerald has been appointed soliciting agent with headquarters in Louisville, or Knoxville, and has not yet been decided which. The Western North Carolina railroad, the tunnel through which all this passenger and freight traffic will pass, is being equipped with new cars and otherwise put in order. Three new passenger coaches are now en route to Salisbury from the shops, and others are to follow.

The Seaboard and Roanoke.

The annual meeting of the Seaboard and Roanoke railroad was held in Portsmouth on Tuesday, with Thomas B. Rowland, of Norfolk, in the chair. The secretary reported that there were 179 shares represented in person, which, with the proxies preent, constituted a large majority of the whole number of shares. The president's report of the operations of the company for the past fiscal year showed the road in a highly prosperous condition, and the business as great as last year, despite the diminished cotton crop. The gross earnings of the road were $751,236; gross expenditures, $572,021. John M. Robinson was unanimously re-elected president, with the following directors: No. 1, Frazier, R. C. Hoffman, Knox, Pratt, David A. Barnes, Richard Dickson, and Moncure Robinson. The annual meeting of the company was held in Portsmouth, and John M. Robinson was re-elected president with the old board of directors.

Truck Farming South.

From the New York Shipping Gazette.

Since the close of the civil war, eighteen years ago, truck farming, or market gardening in the southern Atlantic states, from Virginia to Florida, has become one of the most important industries of that geographical section. The business is carried on chiefly in North and South Carolina, the country around Savannah and in Florida. While North Carolina is doing a large truck farming business, it is a little too far to the north to do much in the way of the earlier vegetables. Mobile does large vegetable business, and is especially noted for its watermelons and local produce. Florida has a large truck farming business, and is especially noted for its watermelons and local produce. FUNERAL NOTICE.

HONORABLE—The friends and acquaintances of Mr. C. W. HUNNELL and family, Mrs. J. P. Glover and family, and Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hunnelt, are requested to attend the funeral of the latter from First M. E. church to-day at 10 a. m.

For You, Madam,

Whose Complexion betrays some humiliating imperfection, whose mirror tells you that you are Tanned, Sallow and disfigured in countenance, or have Eruptions, Redness, Roughness or unwholesome tints of Complexion, we say use Hagan's Magnolia Balm.

It is a delicate, harmless and delightful article, producing the most natural and entrancing tints, the artificiality of which no observer can detect, and which soon becomes permanent if the Magnolia Balm is judiciously used.

31 WHITEHALL STREET.

THROUGH THE CITY.

A GLIMPSE OF CURRENT EVENTS IN ATLANTA.

The dog wagon will begin revolving next week.

The baron ministers mean to give a fine entertainment soon.

Some of the legislators linger on the scene of their recent pleasant labors.

Several elegant mansions will probably be erected on Peachtree street this summer.

The Atlanta fire brigade was paid off yesterday. The pay roll for the month was $2,632.72.

Third Presbyterian church, Senator Colquitt will preach Sabbath 11 a.m. Wm. Shaw at 3 p.m.

The cost of the two day's session of the legislature for the inauguration of the governor was about $7,500.

An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fisher was buried from the residence, 3 Bell street, Thursday afternoon.

Thursday an infant child of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Harrison, 323 Fair street, was buried at Oakland cemetery.

A year old child of Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Crawford, 235 Whitehall street, was buried yesterday evening at 6 o'clock.

The Gate City Guard drill every night. They have not yet decided whether or not they will go to Nashville.

The topographical map of the new Grant park will be completed and delivered to the park commission next week.

A dozen of the Georgia editors stopped over at Atlanta yesterday. They gave glowing accounts of Athens' hospitality.

The largest picnic of the season so far was that of the Fifth Baptist Sunday school to Powder Springs last Thursday.

George Eakin, son of Mr. G. W. Eakin, 82 Davis street, died Thursday and was buried yesterday at Oakland cemetery.

The dedication of the Fourth Presbyterian church has been postponed, and will not take place until the fourth Sabbath in May.

To-day the Sunday school of the Second Baptist church will picnic at Powder Springs, provided the weather will admit of it.

Yesterday a child of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Jones died after a short illness. The funeral will be conducted from the residence to-day.

Calvin Embury, of DeKalb county, was before Commissioner W. C. Smith yesterday, on a charge of illicit distilling and distilling. The case was dismissed.

A private party of about forty ladies and gentlemen of the juvenile class will picnic at Ponce de Leon springs to-day. Several cars have been chartered by them.

Atlanta's Knight Templar will leave the city next Tuesday at 2-45 in a special car for Columbus to participate in the drill which takes place in that city next week.

ARRANGEMENTS for the reception of the Capital City club in its new quarters are nearly complete. The residence leased by the club for five years is being furnished very handsomely.

SUMMER RESORTS are sending out their circulars. All the usual Georgia watering places will be open, and most of them will be improved. Rates are about the same as they were last year.

This morning at ten o'clock the Ponce de Leon society will meet in the agricultural department. The meetings are public, and an invitation is extended to everybody who may so desire to be present.

On Peters street is a barber shop in which a female tonsorial artist, as black as the ace of spades, uses the razor to the satisfaction of the patrons, all of whom, of course, are of the colored persuasion.

The colored folks have chartered cars to Ponce de Leon Monday and the indications are that they will have a big time. The brass band and the military companies will participate in the day's pleasures.

A letter received in this city a few days ago by the friends of Mr. Dean Berry contains the gratifying intelligence that that gentleman is rapidly recovering from his wounds received a few weeks since at Hot Springs.

To-day Miss Gertrude and Annie Snider will leave Atlanta for a six months visit to Europe. They will join a party in New York. Their many friends will regret their departure, but wish them a pleasant journey and a safe return.

The Ladies' Temperance association of Atlanta are preparing for a grand festival, which will last an entire week. Ice, strawberries, etc., will be supplied by the young ladies of the association, and a most pleasant time may be expected by festival devotees.

The reel belonging to fire company No. 2 is worthless, and the board of firemasters will direct the purchase of a new reel next week. The reel was damaged by a runaway team last week, and the driver was assessed $10 for his carelessness by Chief Irwin.

The hook and ladder team, the best truck horses in the south are now picking grass at West End. They have had a week's holiday and will return to duty this week. "Billy," the one that was presumed to have been injured at the Johnson fire on Fair street, is all right again.

Night before last a burglar entered Mr. C. W. Treadwell's residence, on Clark street, and while the family were asleep helped himself to the cash on hand. This alone did not satisfy the thief, and with him a silver watch and a small amount of money disappeared.

To-night the regular Saturday night meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. hall. The topic of discussion will be "Opportunities Overlooked." A cordial invitation is extended to the young men of the city, and it is hoped many may be in attendance. Services will begin at 8 o'clock.

KEE COOPER, a street hack driver, has just passed through the hands of Captain Couca and Officer Stearns. Cooper was arrested at the instance of Major B. A. Cook, who charged him with cheating and swindling, but Cooper satisfied the demands made upon him and was released.

A pair of horses hooked to a wagon upon which there was a suit of furniture ran away yesterday evening on Pryor. The furniture was badly damaged. The centre table and chairs were thrown off and broken, while the mirror, a large and very handsome one, made the rapid ride in safety.

For the past week Officer Zach Reid has been searching among the drays and hacks for licensees. So far he has found about fifty-five drays hauling on the streets without licenses. In each instance the officer has made cases against the person owing the dray and the recorder imposes a fine.

The international convention of the Young Men's Christian association will be held at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, during the latter part of this month. The delegates from the association of this city are Messrs. J. W. Harris, W. Woods White, and William H. Nutting. These gentlemen will leave on the 14th instant.

MOLLIE FRANKLIN, a twelve-year-old white child broke her right arm yesterday. She was standing on the back piazza of her home on Decatur street, leaning over the railing around the porch. The railing gave way and the child fell to the ground a distance of ten feet, and in the fall her arm was broken above the elbow.

OFFICER DICK CLARKE yesterday captured the West End hyena. He is a biped about forty years of age and is deaf and dumb, and evidently insane. His wearing apparel, what there was of it, was much soiled. He was shaven but in his pockets there were two pistols. He is supposed to be an ex-convict from the Tennessee lunatic asylum.

KEE COOPER, a colored man who has been for months past a worker in a blacksmith shop on Mitchell street, met with a painful accident yesterday. He was pounding a piece of hot iron with his sledge hammer, when a scale flew off and penetrated his right eye. The ball was not destroyed, but it is highly probable that Thomas will lose the sight of that eye.

From the sick worms given out by the agricultural department come in good reports of growth and work. Several persons in and around Atlanta have proven that silk may be successfully grown here. At the house of Mr. W. S. Morgan, in West End, there are 75,000 worms spinning away. Their number will, of course, increase very fast. The cocoons are in steady demand at good prices.

Mrs. SIMPSON, a lady who is boarding on Pryor street, has made the acquaintance of a dishonest washwoman. Nearly two weeks ago Mrs. Simpson entrusted her soiled linen to a colored woman, who gave her name as Mandy Howard and her home as 120 Louisiana street. The clothes were to have been returned during that week, but they are not yet returned, and Mandy Howard can be found as well and as Mandy Howard can be found.

WILL MCLENDON was given a cell in the city prison yesterday by Officer Mercer. The prisoner was charged with larceny from the house, and the complainant was N. J. Hogan, who alleges that he has several sacks by McLendon's high-dressed profits. Subsequent to McLendon's incarceration the charge against him was withdrawn and his release will take place to-day probably.

THE open air rehearsal for the Musical union band at the city hall park this afternoon much enjoyed that Professor Cady has been frequently asked to repeat the entertainment this once or twice each week during the summer. The Peachtree street residents have also been after Professor Cady. They want some of these rehearsals on the side of town and several gentlemen have tendered their laws for the use of the band.

AMONG the distinguished arrivals in Atlanta yesterday was General John J. Marmaduke, of St. Louis, who is known as one of the most distinguished major-generals of the confederacy. Since the war he has been engaged in commercial business in St. Louis, and is now a prominent candidate for governor of Missouri. General Marmaduke, a brother of the general and formerly a citizen of Atlanta, is said to be in the city.

AFTER THE DOCTOR.

A FIGHT TO BE MADE ON DOCTOR RAINES.

The Marietta and North Georgia Railroad People Turned to Bring Charges Against Him and Urge His Removal from the Position of Physician to the Penitentiary, Etc.

Yesterday it was whispered around that a big fight was to be made on Dr. Thomas Raines, physician to the penitentiary. It is very generally known that the position is one which is very much coveted, especially by physicians with a moderate practice. While it pays two thousand dollars per annum, the salary is a sort of "pick up" to a man who lives in Atlanta. It is by no means an insignificant sum. Physicians generally make more than two thousand dollars per year but they do not collect more than that amount on an average. Consequently the office is a plum that nearly every one wishes could fall to his lot. So that Dr. Raines would find more candidates for his position than any other in the city of opportunity if he should be removed. With that state of affairs existing he may therefore not expect so easy a victory if the war on him is begun.

The fight will come from certain of the lessees. While it is not expected that Senator Brown will have anything to say against him, it is said that Dr. Raines made his first mistake at the DeKalb mines. It was charged against him that he was intoxicated while at the residence of Mr. Wells, the superintendent, while that gentleman was away, and when the matter was reported and published, Dr. Raines was charged with having been drunk, which was literally true, as Mr. Wells was away from home when he was at the residence of Mr. Wells for a long time before he gave the certificate. In the general and formerly a citizen of Atlanta, is said to be in the city.

A horse car driver on the Gate City line detected a small boy stealing a ride yesterday. The urchin was seated upon the bar to which the mules are hitched, but the bar was just then at the end of the line and the driver slipped up and caught him by the collar. The boy jumped but the driver held his grip and the result was that the boy and his clothes were left behind. The driver, holding the boy in his hand, drove on.

Last Monday night the Capital City club petitioned the city council to be allowed to tear down a servant's house in rear of their premises and build in its stead a two room frame metal roof building to be occupied by their superintendent. This petition was referred to the committee on fire department, consisting of Messrs. Adams, Grant and Brotherton, with power to act. Mr. Chairman Adams has notified the president of the club that the committee will refuse to grant the request, claiming "they have no right to grant it."

A MAN who gave his name as T. P. Johnson, and who reached Atlanta yesterday by the West Point train, is now howling for a lost valise. After leaving the carshed Mr. Johnson claims to have given his valise to a small colored boy to carry. The boy, he says, soon dropped behind. Mr. Johnson, who neglected to look back until his destination, a boarding house on Marietta street, was reached, and the boy and the valise were not to be seen. A search has failed to reveal the whereabouts of either the boy or the valise.

Mrs. H. H. MONTGOMERY's residence on Glenn street was entered by a burglar yesterday morning, while the family were in the city, and every room was thoroughly ransacked. The burglar gained an entrance by breaking a pane of glass in a window in the rear of the house, through which he thrust his hand and removed the bolt, thus enabling him to hold the window. Among the articles missing are some wearing apparel, a pair of handsome vases and a glass water service. The thief had disappeared when the family returned.

The convict who was run over Thursday afternoon and badly mangled by the cars in the tunnel on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, a few miles beyond McPherson's, died at 6 o'clock the same day after Dr. Raines, the penitentiary physician, had treated him. The unfortunate fellow was named Green Battle and met his death by trying to make his escape while the train was passing through the tunnel. He was a free man, but had been in the penitentiary for a long time for furnishing a lady's pocketbook on Whitehall street, and he was considered a very hard case.

Twenty years ago few young men in Georgia were better known than Theodore Cone, son of Judge Cone, of Greensboro, whose famous altercation with Mr. Stephens in Atlanta many years ago has passed into history. Young Cone, now a resident of this city, has just returned from Europe, and traveled extensively in Europe. He returned to Georgia and again went to Europe where he lived several years in the gay capital and great cities. He also visited the city of Rome for some time last year. Mr. Cone has been living in Washington. The papers of that city announce that "General Theodore Cone, of the Georgia army, will deliver a lecture at Lincoln hall, entitled, 'Central Truths and Common Sense Conclusions,' on Sunday, May 13, at 8 o'clock, from the standpoint of a man of the world."

RICE & WILSON,

COLONEL M. E. THORNTON.

Get Into Trouble With One of his Creditors—A Receiver Asked For.

Colonel Marcellus E. Thornton, the enterprising proprietor of the morning Post-Appel, is in trouble.

Yesterday the Barrett Manufacturing company, of Augusta, through their attorneys, Messrs. L. J.
Glenn & Son, filed a bill of injunction to restrain Colonel Thornton from disposing of the property and asking that the court place Colonel Thornton's business in the hands of a receiver. It is alleged that the Post-Appel Publishing company has never been organized and that the company is nothing more than a mere name. They claim that he is insolvent, and that his affairs should be placed in the hands of a receiver.

They say that he is indebted to them in the sum of nine hundred and odd dollars, and that his notes went to protest. The account is for paper. Colonel Thornton says the affair is an outrage, and that he will be able to show up a clean hand this morning, at which time the case will be heard before Judge Hammond. Colonel Thornton bought the Post-Appel about a year ago, paying for it about eleven thousand dollars. Up to date he has put into it about twenty-four thousand dollars and has a good outfit, including a fine press. The colonel is well known as a gentleman of great industry and energy, as well as of courteous manner. It is to be hoped that he will make a satisfactory settlement of his trouble, as he is confident he can do.

GASLIGHT GLIMPSES.

Alexander Barron, a white workman, fell from the top of a building upon which he was working yesterday evening, on Pulliam street, and sustained serious injuries about the head.

In working on Pulliam street yesterday a plow broke a gas pipe, from which the gas came in abundantly. Last night some boys applied a match to the gas and for a while it looked as if the town was going to be consumed, but the gas was extinguished.

Henry Samuels and his wife, a colored couple who live on Fulton street, had a row last night.
Madam Samuels broke her husband's head with a stick of wood, and officers Moncrief and Fate arrested and calmed the pair.

Emile Miller and Kate Miller, man and wife of the German persuasion, got drunk and danced the night in a Peters street. Officers Aldridge and Hildebrand took them in and calmed them on the charge of drunk.

Hamp Cook, a supernumerary policeman, will be arraigned before the recorder this morning upon the charge of disorderly conduct and using profane language. Yesterday morning Cook was standing in front of Lowe's store, on the corner of Whitehall and Mitchell streets, and while there spit on the pavement in front of the store door. Mr. John Eubanks, a clerk, asked him to desist from spitting, and this led to a quarrel, which terminated in Cook striking Eubanks over the eye, cutting an ugly gash, from which the blood flowed freely. After receiving the blow Eubanks grabbed a pistol and Cook faltered ready to shoot it out. Before the duel began officers interfered. Captain Couch made the charge against Cook and will prefer charges against him before the board of police commissioners.

A Suit for Damages.

Yesterday the superior court was engaged in the trial of the case of R. H. Villard vs. Samuel Has-lett, suit for damages. The case was not concluded. Sometime in 1881 the plaintiff bought a mule from R. E. Lee fire company, paying $15 cash, and agreeing to pay $10 the next day. The next day, however, he appeared with the mule, and declined to pay the balance. A dispute arose, and things got cranky, until finally Villard was arrested for cheating and swindling. At the investigation before the justice he was released. He sued for $100 damages.

A Cutting Scrap.

Ed Pendleton was given a bad gash in the left side yesterday afternoon by another darkey named Fox. The darkeys were attending a foot race near the colored colleges and fell out over a bet. The quarrel led to a fight in which Fox used his knife on Pendleton. The gash is deep and is about four inches long, and will keep Pendleton in bed quite awhile. Fox has so far eluded the officers.
He is a young, stoutly built, ginger-colored darkey.

Grocery Burglaries.

During the early part of last night Mr.
Henderson's grocery store on Marietta street was entered by a burglar, who gained admission by opening the rear door with a false key. After cutting inside the store the thief struck a match to see what he wanted. The light attracted Mr. Henderson's attention, who was near by, and an investigation of the cause of the light frightened the burglar away before he could appropriate to himself anything.

Knights of Pythias.

The grand lodge knights pythias will convene in Atlanta next Tuesday. The address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor Goodwin, and will be responded to by Mr. J. H. Herx of Macon, grand chancellor of the state. The regular session on the order will be made by Mr. Sam Small. A banquet will be given at the Kimball Tuesday night.

Laying a Corner Stone.

The cornerstone of the new hall now being erected for the Gammou Theological Institute, of Clark university, will be laid with appropriate ceremonies on to-day at 3 o'clock, p. m.
